NEW GUARD OVER THAW

INCREASE GUARDS FOR THAW

Special guards were set about Harry Kendall Thaw at Manchester, N. H., today, pending the United States Supreme Court's mandate which will turn him over to the New York State authorities about January 11.

This was due to a belief in New Hampshire that Thaw has been planning another dash for liberty, according to word from Manchester.

While his mother, Mrs. Mary Copple Thaw, and his lawyers are planning new steps in their fight to check William Travers Jerome, the slayer of Stanford White will be kept under constant guard at Manchester. Thaw's mother is at Pittsburgh, where, though heartbroken, she is still hopeful.

"The fight will go on," she announced today.

From Pittsburgh came news that

Thaw's fate would not be settled until his family had tried every method known to the law.

Thaw's mother is on her way to Manchester, where she is expected to arrive tonight. She will spend Christmas with her son and spend the day part in the planning of the new fight he will make.

Thaw's counsel here is Governor Stone of Pennsylvania and former Secretary of State Philander C. Kneass, are expected to reach Manchester within a day or two to map out future proceedings in the case.

It is reported that detectives in the employ of New York State are guarding Thaw day and night.

A dispatch from Manchester said today:

"Special guards were assigned today to watch Thaw to prevent another spectacular escape. Any attempt on his part to leave his present abode

STEAMER LANSING SALEM ROCKED BY DYNAMITE BLAST

The steamer discovered ashore a mile off the abandoned lighthouse at West Dennis at the mouth of Buzzards Bay, on Cape Cod, early today in the steamer Lansing, bound from Boston to New London for repairs.

The boat left here last night in tow of the steamer Bay View and broke away from the towing steamer. The Lansing is badly listed to starboard, but is reported not leaking and will be pulled off the shoals late in the afternoon.

NEW PEACE LOVE BY THE POPE; ANTI-AR RIOTS IN AUSTRIA

HOBSON ASKS NATION-WIDE PROHIBITION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—The heaviest anti-liquor fight in the history of the United States was set and the gunners at their posts for what was expected to be the biggest prohibition fight ever waged in the House of Representatives when that body met at 10 o'clock today, two hours in advance of the regular time.

The galleries were thronged and the crowd with difficulty restrained their cheers as the champions and opponents of the Hobson resolution hurled forth their oratorical projectiles.

The resolution proposes an amendment to the federal constitution prohibiting the manufacture, exportation or importation for sale of intoxicating liquors.

EACH DEBATE AN HOUR.

Majority Leader Underwood, Minority Leader Mann and Representative Dugger of the Judiciary Committee and Henry of the House Committee, each had an hour of time in the debate on the proposition, Representative Richmond Pearson Hobson, author of the proposed amendment, had the disposal of all the time allotted to the friends of prohibition.

Representative Hobson, at the outset, had placards containing statistics concerning the use of alcohol and its destructive influence placed in the House. He described the statistics in a brief talk, which was followed by an extended speech. Some of the titles on these placards were:

"Death rate in communities increased by alcoholic habits."

"Drink a cause of immorality."

"Alcoholic dogs have more ferocious and defective puppers."

"Drink cuts into support of family."

MORONEY GETS FOUR YEARS IN JAIL FOR THEFT

John A. C. Moroney, the attorney who drank poison in the detention room at the Fenwick square court house a week ago, was sentenced to four years in the House of Correction today by Chief Justice Allen in the Superior Court for the felony of $1,000 from Walter J. Higgins.

The indictment against Moroney was in four counts, and the lawyer was sentenced on all four.

When brought into court, Moroney changed his former plea of not guilty to one of guilty. The only testimony in the case was from persons who testified to Moroney's character.

DEFAULTED BAIL.

Moroney was arrested on November 11. It was alleged that he appropriated Higgins's funds by the forgery of notes and mortgages.

Moroney was held in Kettle House, after pleading not guilty. When the case was called in the Superior Court he did not appear and a default warrant was issued.

When taken to the courthouse on a default warrant, Moroney tried to kill himself by drinking caustic soda of potassium. Two policemen who saw his action knocked the bottle from his grasp. He was taken to the City Hospital. His name for a time was on the dangerous list. He recovered and was taken to the jail.

HEAVY GAMBLING LOSSES.

Friends of Moroney declared today he was plunged into debt by his excessive gambling losses. At one time he was said to have lost considerable money. Most of this, they say, he won in games of chance, but he lost it all the same way.

Moroney finally found himself penniless. He was desperate and in the hope of regaining his losses, his associates say he used mortgage funds to gamble with his luck fluctuated. He won $1,000 in a dice game at the Kensington Park, but lost heavily when, on the day he was arrested, he was said to have dropped $1,000 in a dice game in a Boston hotel.

GREECE, RUMANIA, MAY ENTER WAR

LONDON, Dec. 22.—Bulgaria will maintain a "hands off" policy if her Balkan neighbors attack Turkey. Solemn assurances to this effect were given immediately on Saturday at Paris, Petrograd and London.

Official notification of this act was sent to the Greek and Rumanian governments and a dispatch received from Athens today stating that the concerted action against Turkey was being planned in messages exchanged between Athens and Bucharest, was taken here to indicate that the two countries would soon enter the war on the side of the allies.

Bulgaria's action in abandoning the position in which she has served as a barrier when an attack on Turkey by her neighbors was threatened is regarded as another triumph for British diplomacy.

If Greece and Rumania enter the war they will increase the fighting strength of the allies by about 520,000 men. Greece can put 150,000 men in the field and Rumania 250,000.

RUSSIANS RESUME OFFENSIVE; 800,000 MEN NOW ENGAGED IN GREAT BATTLE IN GALICIA

ROME, Dec. 22.—It is reported from an authoritative source that the Pope will give a solemn audience to the Sacred College on Christmas Eve, when he will deliver a most important allocution about the war and his efforts to hasten peace. The Pontiff announces that he intends to make another appeal to the sovereigns and chiefs of state in favor of peace.

The Pope will also give an audience to the Diplomatic Corps at the Vatican and will again urge the restoration of peace. Sir Henry Howard, the newly appointed British Envoy Extraordinary to the Vatican, arrived in Rome last night.

800,000 ENGAGED IN NEW BATTLE ON GALICIAN SOIL.

LONDON, Dec. 22.—According to Petrograd advices today, the Russians have again taken the offensive west of Warsaw and have driven the Germans over the Bzura River. They have straightened their line despite hard counter attacks and are slowly but surely rolling back the Kaiser's legions, the dispatches from the Russian capital assert.

FRANCE FIGHTS REPORT GERMAN SUBMARINE SUNK

PARIS, Dec. 22.—The French government has only one policy. That is the prosecution of the war against Germany until absolute victory has been won, Europe liberated and peace guaranteed.

Premier Rene Viviani set this forth in emphasis today when he told the French Senate and Chamber of Deputies that in extraordinary session to take steps for the successful ending of the conflict.

It is reported that the Ministry of Marine has sent a submarine attempting to sink a German troop transport off Mauthausen. No official announcement has been made, but the Ministry states that the submarine was sunk by destroyers after it had sunk a torpedo at the transport.

but these have been only brief.

At one stage the right flank of the Russians swung back from Kamion along the Vistula to Kazimierski, only sixteen miles from Warsaw, but this was only until reinforcements were brought up. Then it swung back again like a huge pèdulum, the Petrograd reports say, striking the Germans that had crossed the Buzza and dealing them crushing blows until they had to withdraw to their original positions west of the stream.

THREE DAYS' BATTLE.

For seventy-two hours Russians and Germans fought a hand-to-hand battle for the possession of the ruins of Terecin between the Utrata and the Pisia. This was a flourishing little town until the Germans made their first attempt to take Warsaw. Since then it has been captured and recaptured six times. It has been wrecked by the shells of the opposing armies.

The Germans, after the three-days' battle, had to withdraw and the crazed inhabitants of Terecin emerged once more from their burrows. In giving up Terecin the Germans also abandoned Szymanow, another little town a few miles to the south.

Farther to the south, the Russians have swung out their line in a broad curve running through Opoczno, and thence shooting out toward Costachowa in a wedge-shaped position, the south side of which lies along the upper Vistula. In this formation they are well placed to repulse any attempt of the Germans to advance from Lodz toward Vangorod, and at the same time constitute a continual menace to the Germans if they at any time leave any gap in their line.

A Lemberg dispatch, via Petrograd, says that more than 800,000 Russian and Austro-German troops are engaged in a great conflict over a battle front about 125 miles long in Galicia. The battle line forms almost a right angle extending from Birza, a few miles west of Przemyśl, southwest to Lupkow and thence northwest to Zaklitzyn on the Danube River, south of Tarnow.

A Warsaw correspondent wires that the right flank of the Vistula has been entirely cleared of Germans, who have fallen back to the frontier, evacuating Malva.

The German view of the situation is expressed in a Berlin cable, which reports the withdrawal of Russian forces from their positions before Piotrkow to Opoczno, a distance of twenty-four miles. Opoczno being east of the Pilica River, the German military experts believe that the Russians intend to make another stand behind that stream, as they have farther north behind the Buzza.

FRENCH TAKE TRENCHES.

Repulse of German attacks and capture of German trenches are the outstanding features set forth in the French official statement issued at Paris this afternoon. It says that near Perth and Les-Lurins the French have captured three German works representing 1,500 yards of trenches. There is a lull in the infantry attacks in Flanders, the fighting there being confined to artillery duels.

Both sides are taking the offensive at certain points on the battlefield. In the Champagne district and in the Argonne around Souain the opposing forces are fighting with the bayonet.

The statement admits that the Germans have made gains at some points, but indicates that these are of no great importance.

The German official report, issued at about the same time as the French, says that attacks by the allies near Albert, Compiègne, Souin, Perthes and Estubert generally have been repulsed.

ANTI-WAR DEMONSTRATION

Anti-war demonstrations are occurring daily in Austria and Hungary, dispatches from Geneva say. Austrian defeats in Serbia have encouraged the subjects of the dual monarchy who have been working for many weeks to have their country effect a separate peace and leave Germany alone in the contest. Reports say that violent demonstrations have taken place within the last two days at Vienna, Budapest, Prague and other cities.

A dispatch brought by courier from Innsbruck says that on Sunday a great crowd gathered before the German embassy in Vienna and threatened to destroy it, being dispersed only by the help of cavalry, in whose charges several persons were killed and injured.

"When driven from the embassy," says the dispatch, "the mob gathered about the royal palace and clamored for peace."

WARSHIPS SHELL COAST.

A Rotterdam dispatch says that British warships have been keeping up a bombardment of German positions along the Belgian coast for thirty-six hours. At the outset of the bombardment German batteries replied briskly, but their fire had slackened today, according to advices from Sluis, and it is believed

Advice to the

"I COULD LEARN TO LOVE HIM
DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of eighteen and meet a young man who is a young woman. I have been going with a certain fellow five months, and when I told him I did not care to keep company with him he said to give him a four years' trip to forget. I told him that I would not do that, and he stated that if I cared to wait for him until he got it, I would like to ask your advice as to whether I should wait or not. I think I could learn to love him.

Yours truly,
F. F.

FOUR years is a long time. If you think you would care to correspond with the young man and try to keep your friendship through letter writing, there is no objection to that. I would most assuredly not come engaged to a man who has gone off on a four years' trip.

WE COULD LEARN TO LOVE HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRBANK:

I am a girl of eighteen and meet many young men and young women. I have been going with certain fellow five months, and when I told him I did not care to keep company with him, he went on a four years' trip to forget. I recently received a letter from him saying he cared to wait for me until he returns. I would not regret it. Now I would like to ask you, do you think whether I should wait, as I think I could learn to love him.

Yours truly,

FOUR YEARS is a long time. If you would care to, I can respond with the young man and try to keep your friendship through letter writing, there is no objection but I would most assuredly not be engaged to a man who has gone off on a four years' trip.

MUSTARD PLASTERS:

Mlle. Lyse Berry, of the Theatre Francaise, says: "I have used all kinds of soaps, but never have used a better one than Savon Cadum."
 Poor soap would be good to spoil your complexion than anything else. Never buy a soap because of its name, its perfume or pretty wrapper. Behind a pungent perfume there may be unguaranteed and other substances injurious to the skin. To be sure of getting an absolutely pure soap, buy Savon Cadum. Then, the great French Comptoir de Paris, it is made of the very finest materials, and is soothing and healing when being medicated with Cadum Pomade. It then beautifies the complexion and is the best preservative against skin infection. At drug and department stores.

Surrender to Railroads, but an Unanswerable Argument for Government Ownership

The long and persistent campaign of misrepresentation by the railroads has attained its desired end. The reward for railroad contributions to the Democratic campaign fund has been claimed "ad pail."

Largely as the result of the persistent and quiet exercise of presidential influence, the Interstate Commerce Commission has reversed itself and granted to the Eastern railroads the power to raise their rates 5 per cent.

It is estimated that this concession will be worth $30,000,000 annually to the railroads participating in it. THIS $30,000,000 WILL BE TRANSFERRED BODILY FROM THE POCKETS OF PRODUCERS, SHIPPERS AND CONSUMERS TO THE VAULTS OF RAILROAD TREASURIES. Most of it will, no doubt, be expended honestly in meeting railroad obligations—but the past history of the New Haven road and the very present methods of the New York Central do not make popular the process of increasing railroad rates by law.

For almost two years the Interstate Commerce Commission has been paltering with this subject. At the outset it denounced the railroad grab emphatically. But the railroad managers were as persistent as a bound on the scent. They scolded many money, and never swayed from the trail. In thirty days after the first unfavorable decision they secured a reopening of the case.

The railroads had elected Wilson, who, as Governor of New Jersey, had shown useful subservience to the railroad mandate. With confidence they had poured money into his campaign chest, and THE TIME HAD COME TO COLLECT FOR FAVORS RENDERED.

One of the commissioners who had voted against the rate increase when first proposed was Franklin K. Lane of California. He was transferred to the Cabinet—a promotion that averted any embarrassing necessity for him to change his vote on the rate increase. It did more. It put Secretary Lane under obligations to the President, who, in turn, was under obligations to the railroads.

Accordingly, under the smiling eye of the Administration, Mr. Lane began making himself very companionable to his old associates on the Interstate Commerce Commission. It was quite openly asserted that his conversation turned much upon the subject of the rate increase. He was quite sure the President wanted it. In fact, the President frankly so stated. And ex-Commissioner Lane was equally sure that conditions had so changed that he himself, were he still on the commission, would vote in favor of the increase.

Supposedly the commission hears arguments, pro and con, made before it in open session and bases its decision upon them. Practically it appears that after the sessions are adjourned the commissioners listen to quiet little personal arguments on the side from persons who, if they were not so very distinguished, WOULD BE CALLED LOBBYISTS.

No President has been more loftily intolerant of lobbyists than Mr. Wilson—when they were lobbying against his interests. But this righteous repugnance did not arise in his bosom when he was confronted with the task of getting a $30,000,000 favor for his friends the railroads.

This perfectly obvious alliance of the Administration with the railroads in their raid upon the pockets of the people has an IMPORTANT BEARING UPON THE QUESTION OF GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP and management of railroads.

People who have not considered the matter exhaustively have argued that an ambitious President might use the railroads under government ownership for his own ends.

BUT UNDER PRIVATE OWNERSHIP THE RAILROADS MAY USE AN AMBITIOUS PRESIDENT FOR THEIR OWN SELFISH AND MERCENARY ENDS.

They serve his ambition with campaign funds. He serves their pockets with concessions. Where does the public come in?

Under government ownership there would be no selfish ends to be attained by any concessions to the railroads. No one would profit by raising rates. No individual could feather his nest by getting new franchises. There would be no profit in politics for the railroads, any more than there is profit in politics for the parcel post organization today.

But there is profit in politics for the railroads today, and hence they are in politics up to their necks. Their managers are sought when campaign collectors are out, and in turn seek the executive offices of State and nation when campaigns are ended.

In attempting to explain and to excuse this great gratuity to the roads—at the public's expense—the commission points out that because of the war, "the competition for capital will be keener and interest rates higher for some years to come than in any corresponding period within living memory."

This is unquestionably true, and, being true, affords the most unanswerable argument for government ownership.

When the railroads, under private ownership, will be begging for loans at high interest to make improvements and extensions, railroads under government ownership could get all needed new capital AT GOVERNMENT RATES—from 3 to 4 per cent. LESS THAN PRIVATE CORPORATIONS MIGHT HAVE TO PAY in time of stress.

Today the government is giving the roads a $30,000,000 concession, partly to cover up bad financing in the past, partly to provide against high interest charges in the future.

What security have the people that when those higher interest charges are actually incurred there will not be another increase demanded?

If the railroads, because of profligate management, find themselves unable to meet the business depressions that are occasionally inevitable, WHAT INDUCEMENT IS THERE FOR THEM TO AVOID PROFLIGATE MANAGEMENT?

If the government can be used at the railroads' will to authorize an additional tax of 5 per cent. for the railroads' benefit, why

Are They Forgotten Words

Inklings and Thinkings

By WEX JONES

A golfer is a gentleman, says the Golfer's Magazine. You wouldn't think so, to hear some of 'em address the ball.

Bernard Shaw says that in the world there are 50,000 men who think. We hope the other 49,998 will kindly refrain from crowding.

Roadster—No, the celebrated cap worn by Secretary Daniels is not a thinking cap.

Association of Life Insurance Presidents says "railway engineers die five years younger than they should." No accounting for tastes.

Famous "thinking horses" killed in the war. A few more thinking men might have stopped the whole thing.

Mexico is a little shy on Presidents just now. Has only three or four of them.

Costs $15,000 to kill one soldier. Much cheaper to have a New York merchant assassinated.

Woman wants divorce because husband would do nothing but feed the chickens. Yes, the feathered kind.

Persia announces its neutrality. Of course Persia's neutral; no Persian could sing "It's a long way to Tipperary" anyway.

In a word, the United States proposes to defend itself, if it can do so without offending anybody.

PERHAPS

By PERCY SHAW

PERHAPS you can tell why the damies who excel in contempt for that octopus Man
Pie a rose in their hair and expect him to stare
In a way that no gentleman can.

Perhaps you can say why the sweet girl M. A.
Who is schooled for a single career
Always rolls up her eyes with lugubrious sighs
When a head doesn't chance to be near.

Perhaps you may know why the women who show
How all babies should be moulded and grown
Always seem to bring to that cultural throng
That could never boast one of its own.

Perhaps you may guess why the ladies who press
Their demand for pan-feminist laws
Their arguments set in the wisest word yet,
The inscrutable Sphinx-like "because."

Perhaps you can sense without malice prepense
Why the widow takes long beauty naps,
Or the debutante rose red paint on her nose,
And perhaps you'll believe you—perhaps.

The Secret of Colored Moving Pictures

By EDGAR LUCIEN LARKIN

Q.—"KINDLY give particulars of colored photographs and electric moving pictures."—A. L. S., Carson City, Nevada.

A.—To give particulars of these two majestic and comprehensive, now standard, sciences would be impossible, even in a series of articles, with intricate diagrams, duly during two months.

Color photography is now so complex that upon even turning the pages of the great books on the subject one cannot escape the impression of being in the very presence of mathematics. These two magnificent world sciences are destined to almost change the mental nature of the human race.

No device ever within the brain of man has such boundless educational, mind-transforming potency and power as the projection of moving colored photos upon screens where all can see. It will actually surpass literature in almost supreme power.

Thus I saw the Roentgen-ray photo of a living, beating heart and the circulation of the blood thrown on a screen as a moving picture fourteen feet in diameter.

The entire audience of a thousand people all saw this marvelous work of nature and learned as much in five minutes as in half a year of reading books. Every student, from kindergarten to university, should see moving pictures in natural colors.

These two sciences, photographing and projecting, are among the most valuable scientific achievements of modern man. The causes of diseases are presented as living, moving bacteria where all can see.

Every other science, from botany through electricity, chemistry, biology, geology, anthropology, spectroscopy, and to astronomy, can now be so greatly simplified by projection that untold millions of people can secure fair ideas at the least minimum of expense. Thus one can now go in from the street and witness a chemist making an analysis in a costly university laboratory for 6 cents.

And behold the amazing revelations of modern microscopy, where billions of living, moving elemental forms are in rapid motion before his eyes, and this for a nickel.

Humanity has nothing with which to compare this in real value. Children murdered by "education" is a thing of the hillops past. And brain tissues will not hereafter be broken down by terrific drills in totally useless subjects in prison-like schools.

And girls will not be killed by needless—algebra. Nor boys, unfit for study. But the bit will see equations solved to their delight on screens by projection.

Imagination cannot now encompass the full extent of humanity changes due to moving colored photographs. In fifty years all students in all schools may finally, at the close of centuries of misleading horrors, be presented with a most astonishing thing—truth.

Q.—"WHAT is the curvature of the earth's surface per mile?"

A.—The earth's curvature is very nearly 8 inches for the first mile, 32 for the second, 72 for the third, 128 for the fourth, and so on. Last: Curvature of the earth's surface on a true plane at sea level is close to the product of 8 inches multiplied by the square of the number representing miles. Thus, 128 equals 8 multiplied by 4 squared, equals 8 multiplied by 16.

Q.—"I understand that the earth wobbles on its axis. How much in degrees and seconds does it vary? Has science computed its variations in advance?"

A.—The gyrations of the axis of the earth is completed in 25,778 years. This is 104 seconds of arc annually. Yes, computations for future years have been made with extreme accuracy.

DOROTHY DIX ON—

What an Accomplished Girl Should Know

How to Read, Write, Talk, Listen, Play, Sing, Cook and Sew—It Requires Much Knowledge, but the Results Are Worth the Effort

WOMEN are the Jack-of-all-trades of life. To succeed a man must specialize. It is enough for him if he thoroughly masters one business or profession, but for a woman to succeed as a woman is a profession in itself—she must know something about everything, and have half a dozen different arts and trades at her fingers' ends.

We don't hear the old-fashioned phrase, "an accomplished girl," very often nowadays, but there's just as much need for her as there ever was, and this brings up the question of what an accomplished girl should know.

First, I think, that an accomplished girl should know how to read—not elude. Heaven protect us all from the young woman who arises in company and recites! There are few greater pests in the world than she, but, on the other hand, there is nothing more deplorable than the companionship of one who is able to read aloud to you intelligently, and sympathetically a passage from some book, or a news story from a very rare one. Not one woman in a hundred can read aloud so that you can understand what she is reading about. She doesn't understand it herself, and that's why so few have the reading habit.

Girls Should Be Taught to Write an Interesting Letter

Second, an accomplished girl should know how to write. She should be taught to write a legible hand, and an interesting letter. Nothing else in the world does more to predispose us in a woman's favor than for her to be a ready letter writer, one who sends us a line of congratulation when good fortune comes our way, or a word of sympathy when sorrow knocks at our door; who writes us a graceful little note of thanks for a card or a letter, and who shows that she keeps our memory green when she is away from us by an occasional letter.

Most people are guilty of silence that is nothing less than brutal just because they have never been taught how to write a letter, or skilled in the gentle art of note-writing. No attention is paid to this in the ordinary school, and yet how to write a letter is one of the most important things that a woman can know.

An accomplished girl should know how to talk. Her voice should first be hand-picked and mastered, or whatever is necessary to make it agreeable to the ear. She should be taught how to laugh instead of giggle, and then she should be taught how to talk. Of course, in its highest sense, conversation is as much an inspiration as poetry; there are two or three great principles that any girl can master that will make her an interesting and agreeable companion.

Don't Talk About Yourself, Your Family or Your Amusements

She can be taught not to talk about herself, her family, her little amusements, the places she has been, and to always talk to other people about themselves and their amusements, and their families and their interests. Between talking about my own golf score and your golf record is the difference between being a bore and a brilliant conversationalist.

She can also be taught to listen intelligently, and to think before she speaks, so that she will keep off of other people's pet corns, and will not converse with a divorcee about matrimonial infidelity, or ask a one-legged man if he dances the fox trot.

An accomplished girl should know enough music to be able to play and sing sufficiently well for parlor consumption, which isn't highbrow in spite of all that we pretend to the contrary. She should also know how to play a good game of cards, so that she will not be the despair of hostesses, or invite murder in the bedrooms of her partner when she has to fill in at a table of bridge.

Talleyrand said long ago that every one should learn to play a good game of whist in their youth, so that they might not pass a miserable old age. Every girl should learn to play a good game of bridge nowadays, so that she may not pass a miserable present as a wall flower.

An Accomplished Girl Must Know How to Make Stew Into Ragout

Finally, and accomplished girl should know how to cook and sew. Whatever a girl may need or not need to know, she is sure to have use for all the housewifely accomplishments she can attain. If she is rich she will be able to run her establishment better. If she is a practical cook herself, and also can come the nearer to getting the kind of effects she wants from her dressmaker if she knows how to make the garment herself.

If she is poor, her ability to keep a good table and dress well depends entirely upon her own skill and knowledge of how to cook and sew. It is art that turns a stew into a ragout, and two dollars' worth of dry goods into a confound, or whatever is necessary to right to consider herself an accomplished woman who can't do this.

It's a great thing to be an accomplished girl, and it requires much knowledge, but the results are worth the effort.

SYMPATHY

By LILIAN LAUFERTY

YOU seem so very far away,
Tho' you are just across the room;
About your head the sunbeams play,
While I am deep in slumbered gloom

And if I crossed to where you stand
The sunlight would not reach my heart.
The miles between us were not phased—
Tho' close, we'd still be miles apart.

But if you come to where I lie
In darkness—very leisurely away,
My happy soul would weave the sky,
And I'd know sun and joy and day!

would it not be better for the payers of that tax to compel the government to take over and manage the railroads for the common good?

Optimists think that in every great wrong there is something that makes for good. The surrender of the government to the railroads is a great wrong—one of the most execrable betrayals of the people to corporate greed that recent history has known. But in it are possibilities of great good, for, thoughtfully analyzed and interpreted, it constitutes an unanswerable argument and a stimulus to the movement for the government ownership of railroads. AND THE SUCCESS OF THAT MOVEMENT IS ALREADY VISIBLE.
